Statement on Ukraine

The UACES officers made a statement condemning the invasion of Ukraine. We stand in solidarity with our Ukrainian colleagues and friends in their fight to preserve and protect their country from aggression.

UACES will continue to support our members across Europe at this time and we are actively exploring options to support members directly affected by the ongoing crisis. We have a meeting of the UACES officers this week at which we will discuss our response in more detail. For now, we wanted to lay out more generally the ways that our members can help:

1. Please visit the CARA website to find information on how at-risk academics can apply for fellowships at universities in the UK. Please share this link as widely as possible, in order to ensure it reaches the right people.

2. Alternatively, visit Scholars at Risk to find fellowships across Europe. Again, please share this link as widely as possible.

3. If your university is offering fellowships for at-risk academics from Ukraine and other countries, please let us know via email and we will collate a list on our website and will also publicise the fellowships via social media.

4. If your university is not yet offering fellowships for at-risk academics, please consider asking your department to open up opportunities.

5. If you feel able, please donate to humanitarian aid charities, including the Red Cross and UN Crisis Relief Fund. There may also be local collections for much-needed supplies in your area. For UK-based members - it has been suggested that monetary gifts are more appropriate at this time due to the constraints of moving goods between Great Britain and the EU.

6. Reach out to us if you need support. We will help if we are able.

THE UK, IRELAND & THE EUROPEAN UNION IN A TIME OF CRISIS

UACES-IACES Joint Seminar Series

Seminar 4
Thursday 24 March 2022, 12:30 – 2:00 pm (GMT)

Security and Defence in the EU, Ireland and the UK

The UK and Ireland in a Time of Crisis: Security and Defence in the EU, Ireland and the UK

With speakers:

Dr Maxine David (Leiden University)

Dr Jocelyn Mawdsley (Newcastle University)

Prof John O'Brennan (Maynooth University)

Prof Ben Tonra (University College Dublin)

Chair:

Prof Richard Whitman (University of Kent)

UACES and IACES invite you to join us for the fourth virtual seminar in the series 'The UK, Ireland and the EU in a time of Crisis'.

The rise of new complex, multifaceted and global insecurities has posed important questions for defence and security policy across Europe and beyond. This seminar will probe the shared defence challenges currently confronting Ireland, the UK and the EU. It will interrogate the re-emerging debate about neutrality in Ireland, explore post-Brexit UK defence strategy and positioning, and critically examine the EU's approach to defence and security in the wake of the invasion of Ukraine.

Research Conference

Maastricht at 30: what next for Europe?

 FASoS, University of Maastricht

 23-24 June 2022

uaces.org/gf22
#UACESgf22

CfP deadline: 10 April 2022

Call for papers open!

To look upon the past, present and the possible futures for Europe from an academic perspective, we invite master students, postgraduate and early-career researchers from across European Studies to submit paper and panel proposals addressing the theme of “Maastricht at 30: what next for Europe?”.

To foster cross-disciplinary conversation, we welcome proposals from all European Studies disciplines and related fields. Including (but not limited to) Political Science, Law, Sociology, Economics, History, Gender Studies, Anthropology, International Relations and Public Policy. We hope that this conference will address the topic in a variety of ways and from a range of perspectives.

Funding of up to 200 GBP is available per paper giver to assist with travel and accommodation. More on uaces.org/f22.

CfP deadline: 10 April 2022

JCER

Following several years of discussion, the UACES Trustees and Executive Director have come to the difficult decision closing the Journal of Contemporary European Research (JCER) for new submissions. The final issue will be published in early 2023. The last date to make submissions to the journal will be 31 March 2022. UACES and the Editors will ensure that any papers already submitted to JCER will go through the peer review process and will be published in the journal if accepted.

UACES is committed to maintaining the JCER website (www.jcer.net) in its current form and ensuring that all issues of the journal remain freely accessible to the public on a long-term, ongoing basis.
